OBITUARY.
Judge Waldo Tillinghast.

The death of Judge Waldo Tillinghast occurred at his home on Plainfield street, in Plainfield, Wednesday morning. Mr. Tillinghast's death was sudden, as he had been ill only a day. Mr. Tillinghast was widely known throughout the town of Plainfield, and his death is mourned by his great number of friends.

Hon. Waldo Tillinghast, son of Rev. Thomas Sweet Tillinghast, died at his home at Killingly, Conn., June 10, 1833. At an early age he came with his parents to Plainfield, where he had made his residence ever since. He was educated in the common schools and Plainfield academy. He was a student at the Plainfield academy in his earliest days and at the same time a student in the academy with Lucien Burleigh. In October, 1855, in partnership with an uncle, Henry Seely, he embarked in mercantile business and in the following year bought out his partner's interest. For seventeen years he conducted a prosperous business at the same stand. In 1872 he built a substantial business block in Plainfield and since then his store has been located in it. His business has increased many fold. For 28 consecutive years he was postmaster of Plainfield. He has been honored with many offices of public trust and responsibility. For 28 years he was judge of probate and for 14 years previous was judge of the court. For 41 years he was a member of the board of education for the town of Plainfield, serving several years as its chairman.

Mr. Tillinghast represented the town in the general assembly of the state and served on the important committee on incorporations. In 1840 he established a lumber business, which was extensively engaged in it, at the time of his death the firm name being Waldo Tillinghast & Sons. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church since April, 1850, and for 17 years was superintendent of the Sunday school. He was church clerk there up to the time of his death, serving 48 years.

MERRILL DOUGLASS SHOT HUNTING

Hole Through Calf of Leg and Foot Peppered With Shot—Companion's Gun Was Accidentally Discharged While Party Was in Woods About 3 Miles From Bishop's Crossing—Injured Man Brought to Backus Hospital.

C. Merrill Douglass of No. 238 Central avenue, who is motorman on the trolley express, was accidentally shot in the leg and foot Wednesday morning while he was out with a party of hunters in the woods about three miles from Bishop's Crossing, which is on the Norwich to Central Village trolley line. He was brought to the Backus hospital here and in the evening it was reported from there that he was resting comfortably.

One piece of shot passed completely through the calf of his right leg, making a big gaping wound, as the gun was so close to him when it was discharged. He was in the woods at the time and he was peppered with shot.

There were six in the hunting party, including Tom Shea, who is barman at the Greenfield hotel, and there was a shotgun in the hands of Mr. Shea that was accidentally discharged.

It is understood. It is thought that the trigger caught on a button of his coat when another man in the party hurried into him as they were hunting. Mr. Douglass, who was near by, received the charge at close range.

The accident happened the other hunters in the party did what they could to stop the flow of blood, and meanwhile Dr. G. H. Jennings of South City was summoned. When he arrived he advised that Mr. Douglass be taken to the hospital and Mr. Douglass was brought here in an automobile that was secured in Jewett City.

He stood the trip well and was not greatly affected by shock from his injuries.

Upon arrival at the Backus hospital the house doctor gave first aid and Dr. J. W. Callahan was called to the hospital to care for the case at the request of Mr. Douglass, who bore his injuries well.
